KARNAGY SPELLING

President Roosevelt a few days ago issued an order commanding the government printing office to hereafter use the Carnegie method of spelling in all public documents issuing from the White House. This order has led the Ogden Journal to say:

Uncle Sam, thru the president today announced a spelling reform recommended the Andru Karnagy homily, and said it would hereafter be accepted in all departmental correspondence and official documents.

Printers, stenographers, clerks and kitchen officers are ordered to unlearn English as she is writ.

"The public printer" has been ordered to prepare lists of the most frequently used hundred words with a new mode of spelling and distribute them to all the departments.

The president thinks this will give the officers a knowledge of individual ability and will result in saving time and trouble for natives and foreigners who are trying to learn the same.
